Cornwall, Ont., Has Heavy Loss In Fire To-day

Twenty-four Buildings in Thriving Town on St. Lawrence Southwest of Montreal Go Up in Smoke

Number of Persons Slightly Injured

Canadian Press
Cornwall, Ont., Aug. 7.—At 4.15 this afternoon the fire that swept through the business section of this town to-day was considered to be under control. Three buildings were still aflame, but firemen were satisfied the blaze could spread no further.

Fire apparatus from Ottawa and Montreal was expected momentarily. Twenty-four buildings had been destroyed, not counting small shops and outbuildings. Some twenty families were rendered homeless.

According to Mayor Horowitz and Fire Chief Hunter, a check-up revealed there had been no deaths or serious injuries. A few residents were reported to have suffered slight injuries, but no official report had been made.

The fire was whipped by a steady wind from the west. It started in a garage on Pitt Street, owned by R. J. Furey and spread quickly to the Victoria skating rink. In a few minutes it had spread to the entire west side of the main street, from Second Street to the town hall.

Three firemen were injured in the early skirmishing with the blaze, but none seriously. Included in the burned buildings were seven homes, three garages, seven stores and several small shops. At 1.30 o'clock two theatres, a bank and a large motor salesroom were in danger as the fire was threatening to spread to all sections of the town. (Turn to Page 2, Col. 1)

MAN SURVIVES GREAT SHOCK

Canadian Press
Sydney, N.S., Aug. 7.—Six thousand volts of electricity shot through Jack Grant's body to-day, but he still lives. Foreman George Doherty went to the rescue and managed to pull him clear of the wire. Both men were badly burned about the wrists and hands, but otherwise unharmed.

Masked Gunmen Bind Hatley Park Victims

Three Thugs Jump on Running Board of Car and Order Occupants Out

Police Also Looking For Men Who Staged Holdup on Rockland Avenue

Provincial and city police to-day are searching for three masked men who held up two Chinese near Hatley Park shortly after midnight Saturday. The Chinese, Harry Wong and Shun Jack, who are employed at the Hatley Park estate, lost $27.50 between them. The holdup was a spectacular affair according to the police report. The two house-boys were returning from Victoria by car and as they slowed the machine up to enter the garage at Hatley Park, the thugs jumped on the running board. Each carried a gun and two had handkerchiefs tied across the lower part of their faces.

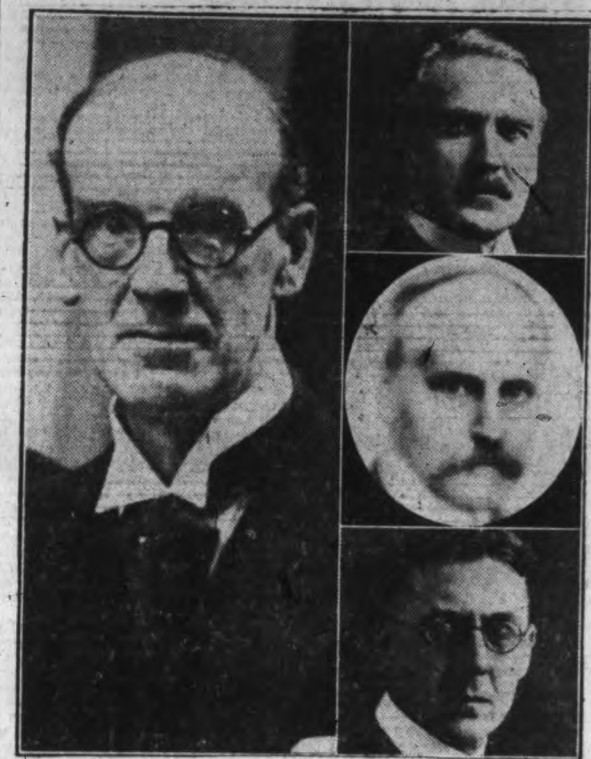

Without saying a word the thugs took their victims out of the car after it stopped and tied their arms behind them. After a search of their clothing revealed the money the Chinese were pushed into the bushes.

The holdup party then pulled the wires out of the auto generator and deflated one tire and left, running to a parked car some distance down the road and heading toward the city. Constable H. Hughes of the Provincial Police, responded to the call from the victims and scoured the district without success. He obtained a good description of the thugs, however. City police are also investigating another affair involving a Chinese, reported to have taken place last Friday evening. This man was returning home along Rockland Avenue when accosted by two others who attempted to slug him. He raised a cry, however, and a nearby resident turned on a veranda light and his assailants fled.

REGAINS STRENGTH

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—A decided improvement was reported to-day in the condition of Senator Gleason D. Robertson, who is seriously ill at his home here. Senator Robertson, former Minister of Labor, suffered a paralytic stroke last Wednesday.

Commission Will Open Bank Inquiry To-morrow

The board which in Ottawa to-morrow will hold the first public session of the investigation of Canada's banking system is composed of the four pictured above and one other. Baron MacMillan, left, who is widely known as one of the judges of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London, is chairman, fellow commissioners being Sir Thomas White of Toronto, upper right, Beaudry Leman of Montreal, right centre, general manager and a director of the Banque Canadienne Nationale, and Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta, lower right. The fifth commissioner, Sir Charles Addis of London, British banker and economist, is also in Ottawa, ready for the start of the inquiry.

AUSTRIA WANTS GREATER ARMY

GERMANS INSIST ON PROPAGANDA

Berlin, Aug. 7.—The German Government refused to-day to agree with the contents of the United Kingdom and France that Nazi propaganda in Austria constitutes a violation of existing treaties. Berlin reminded the powers that for this reason Germany holds "this interference in the German-Austrian difficulty as inadmissible."

The United Kingdom and France had made representations to Germany concerning propaganda activities on the Austrian border, directing the Reich's attention to its responsibilities under the Mussolini four-power pact to preserve peace.

Government Asks Britain, France and Italy to Agree to Much Shorter Period of Enlistment Than Treaty Allows

Rome, Aug. 7.—Austria has privately petitioned the governments of the United Kingdom, France and Italy, to permit her to increase her military strength. It was declared to-day on good authority. To grant permission would have a drastic effect on the enforced disarmament of all of the former central powers, commentators predict. Under the Treaty of St. Germain universal compulsory military service was abolished in Austria and the army was limited to 38,000 men. Officers must do active service for twenty years, and the enlistment period for non-commissioned officers and privates is "not to be less than twelve years."

MAN KILLED IN TRUCK ACCIDENT

Port Angeles, Wash., Aug. 7.—One man lost his life and three to-day were in the Port Townsend hospital as the result of a heavy truck belonging to a carnival company plunging off the Olympic Highway bridge over the Quilts River into the stream below yesterday evening. The man killed was Michael Daly of Seattle.

The West Coast Show was moving to Port Angeles from Raymond. The truck caught fire and burned up part of the equipment of the show. The front end had made the turn on the bridge, but the back end skidded in loose gravel and went over.

BANK INQUIRY PLANS SPEEDED

All Ready For First Session To-morrow in Ottawa; Hearings on B.C. Coast

Commission Is to Travel Across Canada From Coast to Coast

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Aug. 7.—The MacMillan commission on banking and currency holds the spotlight on Parliament Hill this week, with the first public hearing to-morrow. On that occasion, Baron MacMillan, chairman, will make a public announcement outlining hopes and aspirations of the commission, and disclosing the method of procedure to be adopted.

It is expected the commission will leave Wednesday for the west and starting at Vancouver, hold a series of public hearings at the large centres across the continent to to-morrow.

Organization meetings commenced last Friday, the day after Lord MacMillan and Sir Charles Addis had landed from London, and continued on Saturday. Further closed sessions were held to-day in preparation for the opening public meeting to-morrow.

Both Lord MacMillan and Sir Charles Addis are acting without fees, the government paying only their expenses.

The other members of the commission are Premier Brownlee of Alberta, Sir Thomas White of Toronto and Beaudry Leman of Montreal.

NORMAN AND STABILIZATION

Canadian Press
New York, Aug. 7.—Commenting to-day on the for-coming visit of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, reported en route to Montreal and New York, The Journal of Commerce to-day said: "If Mr. Norman is seeking an agreement to stabilize the dollar and the pound sterling, his chances of success are now greater than they would have been during the London Economic Conference, according to views expressed in Wall Street quarters."

Denver, Aug. 7.—A sneak thief stole the bronze memorial plate from the grave of Buffalo Bill on Lookout Mountain, overlooking Denver. Mrs. Johnny Baker, keeper of the lodge on top of the peak, reported the theft to police.

PLANE FLIES 5,900 MILES

World Record Set By Rossi and Codos, New York to Rayak, Syria

French Fliers Exceed British Aviators' Mark By 560 Miles

Canadian Press and Associated Press
Rayak, Syria, Aug. 7.—Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos, French aviators, completed a non-stop flight from New York when they landed here to-day at 4 p.m., G.M.T. (8 a.m. Victoria time). New York, Aug. 7.—News came of the breaking of another record of the air to-day when Paul Codos and Maurice Rossi, French fliers, ended a 5,900-mile flight at Rayak, Syria, fifty-four hours nineteen minutes from the time they took off at Floyd Bennett airport, New York.

MARGIN OF 560 MILES
It was the longest non-stop flight ever made and exceeded the old record by an estimated 560 miles. The old distance of 5,340 miles was flown last February by two British Air Corps officers.

According to dispatches from Damascus, Syria, the Frenchmen still had gasoline in the tanks of their plane, but decided to come down in view of the fact they had broken the record. Their flight was described perfect in navigation and control. Rayak is fifty miles north of Damascus.

The record broken to-day was set last February by two British Air Corps officers, Captain G. G. Murray and Flight-Lieutenant Gilbert E. Nicholls of the British Air Force.

OVER RHODES ISLAND
Orly, France, Aug. 7.—Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos in a wireless message received here at 9.20 a.m. Greenwich mean time (1.30 a.m. Victoria time) said they had passed over the island of Rhodes in the southeast Aegean Sea and hoped to beat the non-stop distance flight record at noon.

OVER PARIS
Paris, Aug. 7.—Lieut. Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos, the first to follow the Lindbergh trail, flew over his commemorative tablet at Le Bourget field yesterday evening on their flight for a new distance record.

The French aces dipped over the airport nine minutes behind Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's time of thirty-three hours thirty minutes from New York to Paris.

TAX PAYMENTS OVER $600,000

Large Accounts in Early Swell Collection Total to New Records

With the payment of a $45,000 account by the city's largest taxpayer this morning, collection of current taxes soared far above previous records for this time of year. The total up to noon to-day was $641,019.45, which is an increase of nearly $80,000 over payments up to the same day in 1932. This amounts to nearly 37 per cent of the current levy, and is almost half of the collection anticipated in the civic budget.

This is the last month in which interest is returnable on advance tax payments. All accounts become due and payable at the beginning of September. There has been a marked increase in the number of payments during the first few days of August, as property owners are taking advantage of the saving of one month's interest, which is possible.

KING THIS WEEK IS TO TOUR ALBERTA

Liberal Leader, Who Will Address Meeting in Prince Albert This Evening, Will Enter Foothills Province Wednesday

Prince Albert, Sask., Aug. 7.—Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King will conclude his visit to Prince Albert with an address at a mass meeting this evening.

To-morrow the Dominion Liberal leader, and members of his party will leave by motor for Saskatchewan on the way to Alberta, where a brief schedule of meetings has been arranged. Tuesday night will be spent at Wilkie, and Wednesday the Liberal leader will enter Alberta. He will speak at Wainwright Wednesday afternoon and then go to Vermilion and Vegreville. Thursday morning he will leave for Edmonton.

New York, Aug. 7.—The F. W. Woolworth Company reported to-day July business showed a 7 per cent increase over the same month a year ago.

FOUR HOBOES DIE IN WRECK

Philadelphia, Aug. 7.—Pennsylvania Railroad announced four trespassers were killed to-day in the derailing of a freight train locomotive and twenty cars near Portage, N.Y. Two other "free-riders" were injured in the accident when the west-bound train jumped the tracks and blocked all lines. Passenger trains were re-routed.

MACHADO SOON IS TO RESIGN

Havana, Aug. 7.—Cuban political leaders declared this afternoon as they left a conference with United States Ambassador Sumner Welles at the embassy that all parties had agreed on the resignation of President Machado.

SCHOOL BURNED
Cienfuegos, Cuba, Aug. 7.—Incendiarists set fire to the public school and to lumber warehouses here to-day. Business in Cienfuegos was paralyzed by the strike.

The school burned down but other fires set by the incendiaries were brought under control. (Turn to Page 2, Col. 8)

AUTO CRASH VICTIM DIES

Raymond C. Roberts, Injured Here in June, Succumbs at Tacoma

Tacoma, Aug. 7.—Raymond C. Roberts, thirty-five, widely-known deputy prosecuting attorney and sports enthusiast, died here yesterday as a result of injuries received in an automobile accident at Victoria, B.C., on June 28. He had been attending the Pacific Northwest amateur golf championship matches there when the accident happened.

The accident in which Mr. Roberts sustained his fatal injuries occurred here on the afternoon of June 28 when he was riding in a car driven by Enoch Alexson, Tacoma, along Oak Bay Avenue toward the Victoria Golf Club. When nearing Oliver Street, the car swerved to miss a pedestrian and crashed into an oak tree at the roadside.

Mr. Roberts was taken to the Jubilee Hospital with a compound fracture of the skull and remained there nearly a month, being taken home to Tacoma on July 26.

He leaves the widow and a four-year-old son.

DEATH MYSTERY SOLVED

San Diego, Calif., Aug. 7. (Associated Press).—A playmate of Dalbert Apshian, the boy whose supposed slayer has been sought for three weeks, apparently solved the mystery of his death by telling Sheriff Ed. Cooper the child had accidentally drowned in San Diego Bay.

BETTER DAYS SEEN IN CITY

Victoria and Rest of Dominion Improving, Visiting Business Man Considers

M. P. Tuteur, Managing Director of Premier Vacuum Co., on Coast to Coast Tour

"With regard to Victoria, I am convinced that brighter and more active business is not only here now but that within a reasonable period we may expect, if not the boom days of 1929, at least a solid measure of prosperity. This conviction is not just built on the wish but on the definite evidence I have received throughout the west from my own company branches."

These encouraging words on the business situation are from M. P. Tuteur, managing-director of the Premier Vacuum Cleaner Company Limited, who is visiting his company's branch office here. In an interview this morning, Mr. Tuteur stated his company was prepared to give some tangible evidence of its belief in better days through advertising to a greater extent, especially in Victoria and Vancouver. While the firm had been one of the very few which had not drastically curtailed its advertising (Turn to Page 2, Col. 5)

Five-year-old Lad Rescued From Drowning By Ralph Alcock at Gorge

Grim Fight Against Treacherous Current Crowned With Success

Battling against the treacherous tide running beneath the Gorge bridge, Ralph Alcock, attendant at the city bathing house, this morning rescued five-year-old Allen Lester, 303 Obed Avenue, from drowning. Unconscious when taken from the water the lad was given artificial respiration by his rescuer, and then taken in the police ambulance to the Jubilee Hospital, where he is recovering.

Eye-witnesses of the near-tragedy paid a great tribute to Mr. Alcock, who plunged into the water fully clothed, having no time to remove his boots. He had a desperate struggle against the running tide before getting the lad to safety.

How the boy entered the water is somewhat in doubt. He and some (Turn to Page 2, Col. 3)

Deckload Shifts, Killing Cattle

Freighter Limp Into Port Alberni With Decks Awash and Dangerous List

Moving Cargo Crashes Into Pens Containing Valuable Cows

Special to The Times
Port Alberni, Aug. 7.—Her port deck awash, and seven head of valuable British Columbia cattle dead in her holds, the freighter City of Victoria, limped into port here yesterday morning. A shift in her cargo when 500 miles off the West Coast of Vancouver Island, caused the damage, and Capt. G. Smith deemed it advisable to return to port for repairs. The forward mast was carried away when the deckload shifted and crashed into the cattle pens.

The ship had a slight list when she left Port Alberni for the Orient last week. This the crew expected to right with the ballast tanks. According to officials here to-day the ship was not overloaded when she sailed. The deckload of lumber seems to be in fairly good shape, which leads officials to believe that a shift in the cargo below decks caused the dangerous list. (Turn to Page 2, Col. 4)

Royal Canadian Mounted Join City Force in Greatest Round-up of Men For Questioning in Regina's History

Constable G. Lenhard Victim of Bullets

Canadian Press
Regina, Aug. 7.—Although hundreds have been taken into custody, the greatest manhunt in the history of Regina has failed to discover the three gunmen who shot down Constable George Lenhard early yesterday evening. Every available man was pressed into service, the full city force being augmented by more than thirty members of the Royal Canadian Mounted and railway police.

From railway yards, rooming houses and every nook and corner in the city hundreds of men were rounded up and subjected to rigid inspection. Cells were jammed until they would hold no more and the big police garage at the rear of headquarters buildings also held more than a hundred.

Lenhard had just completed the examination of a northside house when he encountered three men at the Canadian Liquid Air Company's plant, jumping off his bicycle, he was ordered when confronted with an automatic to throw up his hands. He refused and three shots were fired at him.

He died twenty minutes later in a hospital. A cordon of police was immediately thrown about the district in an effort to trap the slayers.

HAD NO CHANCE
Constable Lenhard was shot in the face and in the chest. L. A. Draper, operator of the Canadian Liquid Air Company's plant, heard three shots and a moment later Constable Lenhard staggered into the warehouse, blood streaming from his face and chest.

The constable mumbled a few words and then collapsed. His gun was still in his holster, Draper said. "They never gave him a chance," he added. Draper immediately notified police and an ambulance was called for the constable, who died a few minutes after reaching the hospital.

A 32 calibre empty shell was found near the spot where the shooting was estimated at $75,000. (Turn to Page 2, Col. 5)

MANITOBA TOWN SCENE OF FIRE

Wawanesa, Man., Aug. 7.—Starting in a garage fire raged the three-story Wawanesa Hotel, a lively barn and some small outbuildings before it was brought under control. The losses are estimated at $75,000.

EXCHANGE DOLLAR AT 93 1/2 CENTS

New York, Aug. 7.—Small declines were registered by Canada house and British currencies at the close of the foreign exchanges trading here to-day after they had held steady earlier. The Canadian dollar ended the session 1/4 cent lower at 93 1/2 cents. The opening figure was 93 3/4 cents. The premium in United States funds was 6 15-16 per cent as against Canadian currency. The pound sterling opened 1/4 cent higher at a cable rate of $4.50, but later lost more than its gain to close at $4.48 1/2. The French franc was .02 of a cent off at 5.31 cents.

One or two minor gasoline explosions were heard as the blaze leaped from building to building.

Because to-day was a holiday, the stores were vacant for the most part and there probably would have been loss of life.

Cornwall is a thriving industrial town of about 12,000 people on the St. Lawrence River about eighty miles southeast of Ottawa and the same distance southwest of Montreal. There are several important industries, including a silk mill and a paper-making factory, but these are well removed from the business section of the town.

FROM OTTAWA
Ottawa, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—The Ottawa fire department sent a pumper to Cornwall just after noon to-day to assist in fighting the fire that threatened the town.

FROM MONTREAL
Montreal, Aug. 7.—A Montreal fire department pumper and hose left here this afternoon en route to Cornwall, Ont., to aid that town's firemen in combating a big fire.

Abduction Threat Against Philadelphia Couple's Daughter in New Hampshire

Associated Press
North Sutton, N.H., Aug. 7.—National guardsmen, sheriff's deputies, motor vehicle inspectors and federal operatives guarded an exclusive girls' camp on the shore of Lake Kears here to-day while the mystery of a reported threat to kidnap Betty Downes, young daughter of a wealthy Philadelphia, remained unsolved.

Seventy-five militiamen from Manchester patrolled the woods and road near Camp Bueno, where Miss Downes and 106 other children, largely from Philadelphia and its environs, are encamped.

Betty Downes is the fifteen-year-old daughter of James R. Downes, reputedly wealthy chief of freight transportation of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Sentence Soon On Gas Charge

New York Police Predict Some
One Will Be Jailed For Stock
Exchange Attack.

Evidence Found in Boston;
Four Men There Held
For Trial

Associated Press
New York, Aug. 7.—Police Inspector John A. Lyons to-day predicted an indictment and conviction in the teeming of the New York Stock Exchange "if the Boston witnesses come forward."

The inspector's statement was made after he had received a personal report on an investigation conducted in Boston by Lieutenant Charles Keefe.

Lieut. Newman dug up plenty of evidence in Boston, Inspector Lyons said.

FOUR BEFORE COURT
Boston, Aug. 7.—Four men described as members of the Communist Party, arrested in Boston after tea gas had been used to break into the New York Stock Exchange last Friday, were held in $5,000 bail each to-day until August 15 on charges of conspiracy to promote anarchy.

Since the municipal court has no jurisdiction, no pleas were entered.

The men are Clarence J. Lyons, William J. Weaver, Otto Reif, and Paul Palazzi. All admitted membership in the Communist Party, of which Eugene S. Daniels Jr., a lawyer, is the head.

Reif, Daniels was arrested in New York after tea gas bombs had exploded in the Stock Exchange ventilating system. All four of the Boston men denied knowledge of the New York incident.

UNUSUAL WORDING
The complaints were worded differently from any seen before by municipal court attaches. The specific charge accused them of "inciting persons of evil mind and disposition, wickedly and unlawfully conspired, combined, confederated and agreed together by exhibition, distribution and promulgation of printed documents, papers and pictorial representation, to advocate, advise, counsel and incite assault upon public officials, the killing of persons, unlawful destruction of real and personal property and the overthrow by force and violence of the government of the commonwealth."

other lads had been playing on the boat east of the bridge. Miss W. was warned by Mr. Alcock to get off owing to the strength of the tide. The other boys left, but apparently Allen did not and fell into the water.

When Mr. Alcock was attracted to the scene again, the lad's body was being whirled around in a strong eddy, and he was almost entirely submerged.

Mr. Alcock dived into the water and with a few quick strokes reached the boy's side. Dragged down by the weight of his sodden clothing as well as the boy's body, he staged a thrilling struggle against the treacherous current which sought to bear him out into the middle of the Gorge.

The boy, unconscious when they reached the shore, was revived by the efforts of Mr. Alcock and the police.

While a rush call was put into police headquarters for a pulmonologist, artificial respiration was given the lad and he was just returning to consciousness when Constable R. Woolsey and James Strong arrived with the police ambulance. They brought both the boy and Mr. Alcock to the city and put the lad under the doctor's care at the hospital.

Mr. Alcock was taken home to change his wet clothing and then returned to duty at the bathing house.

Buildings Wrecked in South Saskatchewan; Boys and Livestock Suffer in Hail- storms

Canadian Press
Regina, Aug. 7.—Thousands of acres of wheat lands were devastated, miles of telephone and storm lines were flattened, buildings were wrecked and damaged, a number of persons slightly injured and farm animals killed in furious cyclonic winds and thunderstorms which freakishly scattered across districts in southern Saskatchewan over the week-end.

Haystacks as large as hen's eggs pounded three small Arcola boys, injuring them. Farmers at other points were injured by flying wood from wrecked buildings.

Telephonic communication on Saskatchewan government, rural and Moose Jaw and Regina city lines was blocked, and even completely disrupted, when the storms howled over like nine-pins, 150 poles going down near Lumsden alone.

GRAIN LOSSES
Sweeping over the Qu-Appelle Valley, the thunder storms, accompanied by cyclonic winds, wiped out entirely hundreds of acres of wheat and other grains. Near Abernethy, a large barn was moved two feet off its stone foundation by the wind.

Struck power transmission lines near Balcarres and the town was without electric current for nine hours. A heavy rain accompanied the storm, but sunlight quickly repaired any damage to roads and the parched soil easily absorbed all the moisture.

BARN DAMAGED
Two Arcola women, Mrs. A. Hibbitt and Mrs. Reed, suffered small cuts from flying glass. The storm smashed in eighteen barns in the district as well as doing damage in the town of Arcola.

Damage to stock includes injuries to both cattle and horses caught out in the open. Many farmers report that animals bled from the noses and mouths due to hailstones battering them.

Some animals had their skins cut by the impact. Hundreds of chickens and turkeys were killed by the stones. Prairie chickens were included in the wild animal list.

Crop damage of more than twenty square miles north of Arcola was 100 per cent. Three inches of hail fell in this area.

A terrific storm also did much damage in the Gravelbourg area, the wind being part of the root of the convective and smashed in bricks from the north and west corners of the building over the convent chapel.

MANY ACRES BURNED OVER

Forest Fire at Cottonwood
Creek Broke Out Again After Being Under Control

Lake Cowichan, Aug. 7.—The forest fire near the site of Camp Tyeo, Cottonwood Creek, again flared up alarmingly last week after it was considered under control following the heavy rainfall. Another very heavy rainfall considerably checked the rapidly spreading flames.

It is estimated that over 1,000 acres of land logged by Camp Tyeo several years ago have been burnt over.

The fire has now reached nearly to the top of the hill at the camp boundary. No standing timber has been burnt up to the present.

This is the first fire of the season in this area. The fire is very serious at the present time, the weather being excessively hot and dry.

Several logging camps are working on early shifts, starting at 2 a.m., during the week that the fire hazard is at its height.

DECKLOAD SHIFTS, KILLING CATTLE

The big freighter presented a pathetic picture of the sea as she slowly made her way up the Alberni Canal yesterday morning. Hundreds of pictures were taken of her as she sailed over into the sea with the water washing along her decks. She had a twenty-deck load.

Thirty-five head of cattle had been taken aboard at New Westminster ten days ago. They were loaded in the hold and were selected for export to a Shanghai herd. Considerable interest was attached to the shipment, as it is hoped to regularly ship British Columbia cattle to the Orient.

Other cows were hurt by the falling lumber and may die. They are under treatment by veterinarians in Port Alberni to-day. Almost all the cargo will have to be discharged and restowed. It will take approximately a week.

LIST OF TWENTY-FIVE DEGREES
When the cargo first shifted the freighter developed a twenty-eight degree list and the captain ordered some of the lumber dumped into the sea so that the ship would right herself. This is an extremely heavy list, forty degrees being considered the danger mark by mariners. Fortunately the weather was good. Otherwise the ship would have had a difficult time reaching port.

Agents for the owners and insurance adjusters are in Port Alberni to-day. They were there when the ship arrived yesterday morning. A survey of the damage will be made and it may be necessary to send the ship to Esquimalt or Vancouver for repairs. One of the masts was carried away when the deckload shifted.

The City of Victoria sailed from Port Alberni last Tuesday for the Orient. She was laden with 1,700,000 feet of British Columbia lumber, much of which was loaded at Victoria ten days ago.

British Columbia agent for the City of Victoria is the Ocean Shipping Company of Vancouver. King Brothers are the local representatives. The freighter was built at the shipbuilding plant of John Coughlan and Sons in Vancouver in 1920. She is registered at 5,698 tons, with a length of 411 feet, a beam of fifty-four feet and a depth of twenty-seven feet. Her home port is Vancouver.

Mechanic Killed In Auto Pile Up

Stockholm, Aug. 7.—One Swedish mechanic was killed in a pile-up of eight racing motors in the Swedish Grand Prix yesterday.

The pile-up was precipitated by the collision of two Swedish cars. Six others swerved into a ditch or piled up on the wreckage. Although there was only one fatality a number of other drivers and mechanics suffered minor injuries.

The race, witnessed by a crowd of 100,000, was won by the Italian, Irivio, with the young American, Whitney Straight, second.

outlay during the depression, yet the management felt there had been a tendency to neglect the two coast cities. Premier was selling three out of every four vacuums sold in Canada and the new campaign would even further stimulate sales.

Few men have traveled more extensively in the interests of business promotion within Canada and between Canada and the Old Country than has Mr. Tuteur. Mr. Tuteur's present trip, which is taking him to all his company's offices from coast to coast, followed immediately on his return from England, where he has been reviewing the Canadian export situation for his company.

OLD COUNTRY SOLID
"Great Britain is wonderfully solid," said Mr. Tuteur. "She is manifesting countless signs of confident reconstruction and progress. The observer from this side can never for a moment doubt her future, nor for that matter, the future of an economically as well as a patriotically integrated Empire."

"What ever may result from the London deliberations, the Empire's extraordinary diversity of materials and products insures for each member nation a growing prosperity, the foundation of which, I firmly believe, are already being encouragingly built on Premier Bennett pointed to this the other day when he observed that world agreements would not in any way weaken or affect the foundation laid a year ago at Ottawa."

Mr. Tuteur finds this same spirit of optimism driving through western Canada. He had, on the property, in 1925, found a piece of float, he said, that had been sent to Falkenberg and Company, analytical chemists of Seattle, for assaying. The return made on this piece of float gave 178.16 ounces to the ton, or a value of $3,223.26. Members of the party could hardly credit this claim until Mr. Drake produced the original assay certificate.

While not anticipating encountering such spectacular values in quantity, Mr. Mackenzie said, this phenomenal enrichment substantiated the opinions of the professional men that the vein held great possibilities.

Dalby Morkill, well-known Victoria surveyor, has had a crew of men surveying claims of the company for the last two months. J. P. Scarlett, gold commissioner at Barkerville, advised the company this week that surveys had been recorded for twenty-four of the claims on the apex of the mountain. Work is progressing on survey of the remaining claims.

done and a piece of brick was found to have been chipped out by a bullet on the liquid air plant building.

Donald Campbell and Miss Leona Amy, driving nearby when the shot was fired, said they saw two men running and another west, following the shooting. They were thought to be the slayers.

Although motive for the killing is unknown, it is believed the constable met his death when he surprised the gunmen as they were attempting to break in the liquid air plant.

LEADER KILLED

Bilbao, Spain, Aug. 7 (Associated Press).—A political argument to-day in the town of Sadupe, near here, between Nationalists and socialists, resulted in the death of Jose Aburto, Nationalist leader, and the serious wounding of two socialists. Civil guards dispersed the fighting throng of about 100 persons.

MILK PRICE UP

Toronto, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—A new scale of prices, raising milk one cent a quart to consumers, effective to-day, was put into force by the milk distributors and producers here. The measure was taken to avert a milk shortage which, they stated, threatened the city and district. The new price paid to the producers is $1.81 a hundredweight for milk. The former price was $1.45.

MINE MAY HAVE POSSIBILITIES

Ledge of White Quartz 12
Feet High Juts Out From Mountain Side

Alex. MacKenzie, managing-director, William M. Halliday, vice-president, and D. V. McLaughlin, director of the Cariboo Mountain Gold Mines Limited, returned to the city over the week-end from a trip to the property of the company located on Cariboo Mountain, Barkerville district. They were accompanied on the trip by two mining engineers, J. A. McLaughlin, of Vancouver, and B. H. Hewer, technical adviser for United States interests in investigating the property, and a crew of ten men.

The three directors and two engineers climbed to the top of the mountain, where a great ledge of white quartz was plainly visible for more than 1,000 feet, being from fifteen to eighteen feet wide and standing ten to twelve feet above the surrounding country. Mr. McLaughlin and Mr. Hewer were greatly impressed with the showing.

After examining the property for three days, both engineers made written reports to President W. A. MacKenzie, former minister of mines. Mr. McLaughlin's report in parts is as follows:

"No one can see this showing without being very much impressed by it. For a distance of between 700 and 1,000 feet the vein is exposed. With very little work I have no doubt that its extension could be proved for some distance. As it stands to-day this property looks to be the best prospect I have ever seen. I feel certain that the chances of finding pay ore at depth are good. I had an opportunity of seeing the underground workings of one of the large gold mines in Ontario last summer, and I think that the showing here compares favorably with what I saw there. The vein here shows no break anywhere for the full length mentioned and keeps its direction almost perfectly. I fully expect that it will show the same persistence vertically. I think that the proper procedure is to drive a tunnel to crosscut the vein, after which work should be continued along the vein in both directions.

This work will call for a tunnel approximately 350 feet and will give a depth of 200 feet. A large tonnage of ore would be developed on a vein which should average about eight feet in width for its entire distance.

Mr. Hewer's report concludes as follows: "The massiveness of the vein and the great length which will be exposed by surface work, also the very fine appearance of the quartz, would make it highly interesting mining to open it up a few hundred feet below the surface, and expose the sulphide zone where, if sufficient gold exists and appearance are extremely favorable, one of the largest gold mines in this country will be exposed."

Mr. McLaughlin expressed the opinion to the directors that the vein was a true fissure vein. Both he and Mr. Hewer remained at the property directing operations and the driving of the tunnel.

It was not until after the professional engineers had expressed their opinions of the possibilities of the deposit that Mr. Drake produced the opinion to the directors that the vein was a true fissure vein. Both he and Mr. Hewer remained at the property directing operations and the driving of the tunnel.

Groups Preparing At Banff For Big Pacific Conference

Committees Now in Session
Making Final Plans For Sessions Next Week

Banff, Alta., Aug. 7.—International groups that will confront the conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations, opening in the Banff Springs Hotel next Monday, August 14, came under preliminary review at a series of committee meetings which commenced here to-day.

No one can see this showing without being very much impressed by it. For a distance of between 700 and 1,000 feet the vein is exposed. VALERA DENIES
CIVIL WAR NEAR

Associated Press
Dublin, Aug. 7.—Reports published abroad that the Irish Free State was threatened with civil war, based on the government's quick decision to throw armed guards around public buildings here, were characterized today by President de Valera as "nonsense."
It is admitted in some authoritative quarters that the formation of a national guard headed by such determined men as Owen O'Duffy, former chief of the Irish guards, is an embarrassment to the government, but it is unlikely the new force will be prohibited.
President de Valera is opposed to this form of coercion and could not join the guard without being pressed to take action against the independent republican army.
O'Duffy, who is credited in rumors with attempted to establish a dictatorship with the aid of the national guard, said the government was "making the country look ridiculous in the eyes of the world."

Final Discussion in Montreal
Before Sending Out of Strike Ballots

Canadian Press
Montreal, Aug. 7.—One more meeting of the general conference committee of the railway running trades unions was held today before the sending out of ballots to the members for the impending strike vote. Preparation of the ballots was begun Saturday, but all the general chairmen had not yet placed their approval on the form. It is believed this was the purpose of today's meeting.
On the ballot of the 24,000 engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen and telegraphers, employed on Canadian railroads, will be asked to decide whether they wish to accept the second 10 per cent wage cut effected by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways or to put on strike. It will likely take a month or six weeks to secure return of all the ballots and tabulate them.
Decision to take a strike vote was reached by the general conference committee Friday after a last minute effort to induce the companies to reconsider the wage cut had failed.

TOIL OVERTIME ON CODE WORK

Washington NRA Workers
Do Not Get Benefit of 40-
Hour Week

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington, Aug. 7.—Some at least of those white collar workers about whom Gen. Johnson has been so much concerned aren't getting the benefit of the forty-hour week.
The workers in the general's own department, for instance, who have been fixing it so the rest of us won't have to stay on the job so long, frequently toil far into the night. Lights blaze from the Commerce Building, which houses NRA, until midnight and later.
The general himself works as hard as anyone. Most key officials are at their desks from eight or nine in the morning until seven or eight at night. Visitors are so numerous and conferences so frequent that most can be accomplished in the twilight hours. So many of these officials return after dinner and may not get home until two or three in the morning.
And of course the executive must have his assistants, secretaries and stenographers around.
The result is that a lot of lovely girls are becoming thin and pale. One slender little NRA blond has lost four pounds in two weeks, and it's going to be a crime if she loses any more.
This goes on especially in NRA, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, the Public Works Administration, the R. F. C. and other agencies actively promoting the New Deal. But it's also true of many regular departments and bureaus which are operating with new duties and curtailed staffs.

Speedy Operation After Stab-

Successful

Associated Press
Chicago, Aug. 7.—A sixteen-year-old youth with a sewed-up heart was alive today, and his physician said the delicate operation, performed after the victim was mysteriously stabbed by an unidentified assailant, probably would be successful.
The boy, Elihu Garmisa, was rushed to a hospital late Saturday evening by police immediately after the attack and with no more than a stab wound. Dr. J. D. Kucky, assistant professor of surgery in the University of Illinois school of medicine, operated.
"The heart had stopped beating when the boy was placed on the operating table," Dr. Kucky said.
Thirty seconds later the operation would have been futile, he said. As to the number of stitches, he said he knew he took four to close the inch-long wound, but that in his haste he may have taken five.
Following the operation the heart was massaged until it resumed its normal beating.

MURDER HUNT IN NEW YORK

Death of H. F. Sanborn, Railway Official, Is Mystery

Associated Press
New York, Aug. 7.—Two disclosures heightened interest in the Henry F. Sanborn murder mystery today as police hunted in the realms of business and romance for light on his last days.
1. Sanborn, a forty-four-year-old railroad executive, drew $2,000 from the bank July 17, the day he vanished, never to reappear until the body was found Saturday, bullet-riddled and buried in a scooped-out grave in a Queensborough thicket.
2. The name of his fiancée—hitherto kept secret—according to police, is Magnihild Almskaar, a Brooklyn interpreter, twenty-seven years old. Police said they desired to question her.
Mrs. Grantvan Sant, socially prominent sister of the dead man, said she was puzzled by the $2,000 withdrawal. She said Sanborn, although a man of independent means, had never carried much money with him.

TWO FRIENDS AWAY
New York, Aug. 7.—From a thick roll of currency, an uncashed cheque and a receipt for stock in a brewing enterprise, police strove today to learn more about the strange slaying of Henry N. Sanborn, son of a St. Paul jurist, whose bullet-pierced body was found in a shallow grave on Long Island.

Investigators were balked at last two fields in seeking information about Sanborn, general eastern agent for the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad, who disappeared July 17.
Two men known as his friends were absent from the city on vacation trips. One was Arthur S. Owens, another railroad employee, who notified police he was missing. The other was Banning Mitchell, an investment counselor, who sailed for Italy July 22.
The other stalemate was brought about by refusal of the Y.M.C.A., where Sanborn stayed, to permit police to examine his room without a court order.

The body of Sanborn, which medical examiners said had been buried for some time, was identified by the socially prominent James Irving Bush, whose wife, the former Virginia Van Sant of St. Paul, is a niece of the slain man.

PRAYED NERVES COMMON
Prayed nerves and dazed brains are common.
No one works harder or longer than Gen. Hugh Johnson. Up late the nights before, he was "buggy-eyed"—as one of his aides described it—when he opened the oil hearings.
Johnson, after the first witness was through, called two separate witnesses and successively turned them off with the assertion that they were appearing in the wrong order. After whiplash conferences with Legal Advisor Richberg and Deputy Administrator Simpson, Johnson realized that they had come on in the correct order. So he called them back to finish their speeches.

SINCLAIR WALKS OUT
One of the witnesses was Harry F. Sinclair, who looked older than in his appearances here during the oil scandal trials but still didn't seem to be missing any tricks.
Johnson, not realizing that the first speaker had presented one code, halted Sinclair after about two minutes and said he must wait until the code had been offered. Sinclair, confused, left the hall. When Johnson called for him again, someone else had to read the Sinclair statement.

BUSINESS OF BEING TOUGH
When an industrialist gets tough, Johnson still knows how to get tougher.
He called in representatives of the shipbuilders one night when an impasse had been reached on their code.
The shipbuilders found Joseph Franklin and John P. Frey, labor leaders representing the shipyard workers, waiting in Johnson's office.
What they demanded were those birds doing there? Johnson stuck out his chin and roared:
"You fellows have got a wrong idea in your heads. Now get it out! This is a conference of shipbuilders, shipworkers and the government."
That was all—except that the shipbuilders accepted Johnson's demand for a thirty-two-hour week in yards engaged on government construction and a thirty-six-hour week elsewhere and on repairs. Labor had demanded a thirty-hour week and the industry a forty-hour week.

DECREASE IN LIQUOR MELON

City Gets $4,000 Less Than Estimated in Final Government Distribution

Both Liquor Profits and Motor
License Receipts Down
This Year

In the final distribution of liquor profits, for the half year ending last March 31, Victoria will receive only $1 per cent of what it expected, figures released by Hon. J. W. Jones, Minister of Finance, indicate. In future, the city will receive no income from this source.

Victoria is listed to receive $18,900, it budgeted on an estimate of $21,000, based on previous grants. Last year the city received more than $39,000 for the twelve-month period, but the present grant is well below half of this total.

The motor license share for the municipality is within a few hundred dollars of the estimate, amounting to $38,385.

The total grants to be paid out by the government are considerably lower than last year.

Liquor profits to be distributed to the municipalities amount to $267,772 for the half-year, while the total distribution last year was $618,025. Out of the motor license receipts the municipalities receive $510,521, as against $509,812.

Sanich will receive $6,763 from the liquor profits and $12,733 from motor license. Oak Bay $2,719 and $5,788, and Esquimalt $1,566 and $3,215.

Following is a table showing the full distribution:

Head of Recovery Adminis-

Associated Press
Washington, Aug. 7.—The plea to "buy because buying supports your job" started today the recovery administration's attempt to utilize increased purchasing power it feels is being created by hour-shortening, wage-raising agreements of the government with business and industry.
Along with that request from Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, went this boycott threat:
"Where should you spend? Can there be any question? You should spend under the Blue Eagle. If you spend there you are spending for increased employment. If you spend elsewhere you are hurting the chance to end unemployment because you are helping to destroy business of the men paying more for help and you are aiding them who refuse to do so."

Twice in separate messages—once to the grocers of Indiana and again to a Cleveland mass meeting—the administrator of national recovery gave his assurance of quick disciplinary action.
"Do not trifle with that bird," he said in his message to the Ohio city. "In the confusion of early days a man may get away with it. But the day of reckoning against an aroused public opinion is sure."

Concurrently, President Roosevelt in a statement made public by the recovery administration, promised businessmen the federal government intended to adjust its contracts with them so no hardships would be suffered by those caught between legal agreements and rising prices.

Mr. Roosevelt called attention to his appeal for co-operation in a general employment agreement, urging private businessmen to submit contracts for future delivery to equitable adjustments, and said the government "as a buyer of goods should be willing itself

KEEP HITLER DOWN

Adolf Hitler, the gentleman from Austria, who first experienced the urge of political leadership in a beer hall in Munich several years ago, and is now German Chancellor, is rocking the European boat of peace. He has either ordered or condoned the dispatch of airplanes to drop literature over the Austrian frontier which has for its object the conversion of the Austrians to the idea of union with Germany—a plan diametrically opposed to the policy of Austrian Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, at least, while Germany is under Nazi control.

So persistent has Chancellor Hitler been in this "campaign" that Great Britain, France, and Italy have considered it necessary to remind him he is a party to the pact under the provisions of which his country and the other three have guaranteed the peace of Europe for ten years. As this is written, we are told in a dispatch from Paris, that the ambassadors of the three former allies have, in oral communications to the government in Berlin, pointed out "the alleged danger and impropriety of recent Austro-German incidents." And in addition to the dropping of leaflets from the air over the northern frontier cities of Austria, speeches, in tone similar to that struck by the phraseology of the printed matter, have been broadcast from several German cities.

On top of this is the news from Rome which says that Austria privately petitioned the governments of the United Kingdom, France, and Italy to permit her to increase her military strength. Under the Treaty of St. Germain, it will be recalled, universal compulsory military service was abolished in Austria and the army was limited to 38,000 men. If Great Britain, France, and Italy were to agree to Austria's request—much as their sympathy may be with that country—it would simply mean that they would be agreeing to the creation of the very state of affairs which the Four-Power Pact is intended to avoid.

Yet it is suggested that there is an inclination on the part of the governments of these three countries to let Austria go ahead with her additional army man power if only as a deterrent to what is known as the Anschluss—union by annexation—a movement which, of course, is dear to the heart of Chancellor Hitler. Rather than accede to Austria's request—presuming the report that it has been made is true—it would seem to be the duty of Great Britain, France, and Italy to tell the German dictator in terms which he would not be able to mistake that he must behave himself.

There have been reports that Germany is re-arming on a large scale, that she is manufacturing secretly great quantities of machine guns, tanks, and fighting aircraft. It is understood that Great Britain and France are arranging to make an investigation to see whether the Treaty of Versailles in this connection is being violated. What truth there is in these reports it is impossible to judge.

We get an impartial view of what he describes as the war-like conditions in Europe, however, from Mr. Henry Morgenthau, former United States ambassador to Turkey and a delegate to the recent World Economic Conference in London. He puts it bluntly and says that "all Europe is ready for war." He makes the statement that the policies of Chancellor Hitler, if successful, will work for a general war, and if these policies are unsuccessful, civil war will result within that nation and spread over the European continent.

Perhaps Mr. Morgenthau is somewhat pessimistic; but there are definite indications that trouble is brewing and will become serious if it is not checked. This is where Great Britain, France, and Italy should come in—assuming that the Hitler government's signature on the Four-Power Pact means nothing more than a signature. If they are determined that there shall be no more war in Europe for ten years, their course with Hitler, if his outpourings are not mere bilge, should be plain.

As far as the British Empire is concerned, another war is wanted about as much as bubonic plague. In human life the last conflict cost this association of countries no fewer than 1,104,890 men and women. Of these a total of 517,771 have no known graves, while 587,119 are buried in 15,705 cemeteries scattered throughout 108 countries, islands and protectorates of the world. These figures are furnished in the thirteenth annual report of the Imperial War Graves Commission, just published.

The British Empire enlisted 9,296,691 men and women in the navy, the army, the air force and subsidiary combatant and administrative services from August, 1914, to November, 1918.

Canada's total enlistments in the Canadian Expeditionary Force were 619,636, or 25.2 per cent of the male population between the ages of eighteen and forty-five. Of these, 51,743 were killed in action, 6,767 died from disease, and there were 1,006 other deaths. Nearly 170,000 Canadians were wounded. Those who served outside Canada number 424,589 men. These figures speak for themselves.

WHAT ABOUT THE HIKER?

If money is available for unemployed persons, at least some of it might be spent on the provision of a part of the existing highways for pedestrians to walk in comfort. Some of the most attractive "walks" in and around Victoria are just highways for the use of automobiles.

True, the automobile is one of the most important vehicles of travel these days. But there are still those who have no automobiles and who still must depend upon Shanks' Pony.

Yesterday was a beautiful day in Victoria and many of our citizens went hiking. Those who merely hiked around the Marine Drive or other parts near to the city were compelled continually to keep on the look-out for motor cars. They had to stay on the road; there was not a side-path along which they might leisurely amble.

Surely it ought to be understood by governments that in the construction of new highways—when the financial condition of the province permits—some thought must be given to the pedestrian.

THE MEAL TAX

The decision of the provincial government to abandon collection of the meal tax was quite up to expectation. We doubt if any attempt will be made to have the constitutionality of this impost reviewed in a higher court following the judgment of a Vancouver magistrate that the province has no power to impose this charge on the vendors of meals. This is a sleeping dog which should be left to lie; otherwise he might arouse an entire kennel of somnolent taxation canines, such, for example as the gasoline collie and the wage tax Alsatian shepherd, one of which has no constitutional status, while the legal position of the other is very doubtful. There is good reason to believe that if the meal tax is appealed the other charges will be contested.

Provincial governments have no power to impose indirect taxation, and the sooner they recognize this elementary fact the better for themselves. The blisful theory that the public can be taxed to the limit of its taxable resources is a broken reed, for anybody can question the constitutionality of a statute. The gasoline tax is tolerated simply because the public knows that if the province does not resort to this reservoir of revenue the Dominion will, but it would be well for the provincial authorities to bear in mind that there is a very definite limit to the measure in which they can levy charges upon the public. Incidentally, this ought to be a comforting thought to the taxpayers who are tired of paying for two million dollars' worth of road machinery which was never needed, nor to speak of other forms of governmental extravagance.

THE GORGE BRIDGE

It is now more than three months since the Gorge Bridge was condemned as unsafe for traffic, and so far no structure has been built in its place. Meanwhile scores of residents on both sides of the Arm, as well as many business interests, have been seriously inconvenienced by the absence of any means of communication at this point. A fortnight ago there was an announcement that the contract for the bridge had been awarded, but as it will take some time to fabricate the material for the work it is not likely that the structure will be completed until late in the fall.

A few years ago the condemnation of this bridge would have been followed by the construction of another one in very short time; there would have been less pow-wowing, negotiations, conferences and what not, in the face of what unquestionably is an emergency. Now, months elapse before the contract is awarded for a work which, while it involves a very small expenditure, is really one of the most important links of communication in the whole of Greater Victoria. As an example of official inertia, the condition of affairs at the Gorge takes the cake.

RECREATION'S VALUE

The practical usefulness of public recreation grounds in a time when economic depression gives lots of people more leisure than they know what to do with is graphically shown in figures just issued by the National Recreation Association.

Slightly less than 7,500 of the 12,684 directed play areas supported by 1,012 cities in Canada and the United States were visited by more than 270,000,000 adults and children during 1932. Attendance at outdoor playgrounds was 13,000,000 above the previous year's total.

Even in desperately hard times, public recreation deserves full tax support. Money spent on these facilities is money very well spent indeed. It would be difficult to over-estimate the amount of good that organized play spots have done during the past year.

Twenty-seven Austrian Nazis were arrested yesterday at Innsbruck and marched under armed escort to a mountain where they were compelled to climb a cliff and remove a swastika emblem at an altitude of 6,000 feet. There is a question here as to whether the compulsory physical exertion meted out to the Fascists of Austria is worse than the castor-oil treatment which Mussolini prescribed for the anti-Fascists of Italy in the early days of his regime.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

GOLD
The London Advertiser

Canadian gold is selling at a premium of more than 50 per cent in Canadian paper currency. That is "velvet" for the dividend-paying mines, but it will do more. It will raise much low-grade ore to a profitable price, and bring many abandoned or half-developed mines of this class into production, besides stimulating the search for new mines. The present premium may not last for a long period, but reduction of the gold content of the dollar and pound may have the same effect.

EUROPE FIRST
The Boston Globe

If Europe can be kept right-side-up, and the affairs of the western nations ironed out, the Far Eastern question will settle itself. Unity of the white races is a prime requisite to a reasonable adjustment with the Asiatic pressure. If no unity can be attained, then the United States will be obliged to face the Asiatic problem single-handed. The first question to decide is whether one quarter of the world's people, those residing in Europe and North America, can stick together and settle their differences. If they cannot we shall have to settle our own affairs alone.

Ye shall walk after the Lord your God, and fear him, and keep his commandments, and obey his voice, and ye shall serve him, and cleave unto him.—Deuteronomy xlii 4.

Loose Ends

This was supposed to be a solemn column on the fall election—the state of the nation and all that kind of thing—but look what has happened to it—Still, it is impossible to escape the organized violence of a birthday party next door.

By H. B. W.

DIGNITY

TIME CHANGES all things, even the little girl next door; and, indeed, it was rather melancholy for us who had known those boisterous days of yore to see the new and rather oppressive dignity and refinement of her fifth birthday party. Still, it wasn't dignified and refined enough to be stuffy. I mean, even when you are five, you can still have moments of unconventionality and there was sufficient freedom from restraint to make the party pleasant, to make all the guests feel at home, to make a large part of my garden and to threaten the very life of my poor turtle, Hasdrubal.

When she was young and unsophisticated, I recall that the charming hostess next door used to receive her birthday party guests by rolling on her back, kicking her feet in the air and screaming as if in great pain. But, as I say, age has brought dignity and a sense of poise. On this occasion, therefore, she received her guests while standing on a high rock above the lawn and jumping down to the grass with a thud and a grunt. The guests, perceiving their hostess in this pursuit, immediately joined her in leaping off the rocks upon the lawn, and before long about twenty of them were leaping at once, which I thought a delightful way of breaking the ice at a party, and much more desirable in its effect than the usual cocktails of dull grown-up people.

PINK ONES

THEY KEPT climbing up to higher places on the rocks and jumping greater distances until one by one they all knocked their wind out with a painful grunt and had to sit about in silence until they recovered it. And the hostess, demonstrating her greater experience in jumping, ascended to such a high rock above the lawn that the air with much force that she apparently damaged an essential part of her costume. This she announced in a shrill voice to all the little boys and their mothers as follows: "I busted the elastic on my best green pants, busted the elastic, busted the elastic! Now I'll have to wear my pink pants with the rose on it, like a goat, and pushing her all over the garden to show her the lily pond, the woodpile and the bird bath. Then he dragged her, screaming, through the house and systematically revealed to her the contents of his mother's bureau, the inside of the ice box, and, very graphically, how the plumbing worked. But he dropped her cold when he caught sight of the refreshments.

Meanwhile the little boy next door, the youngest gentleman at the party and hardly a gentleman either, had conceived a violent passion for a little girl, twice his size, with long curls of straw-colored hair. He demonstrated his affection by bunting her from behind with his head like a goat, and pushing her all over the garden to show her the lily pond, the woodpile and the bird bath. Then he dragged her, screaming, through the house and systematically revealed to her the contents of his mother's bureau, the inside of the ice box, and, very graphically, how the plumbing worked. But he dropped her cold when he caught sight of the refreshments.

SUSPICIOUS

NOW THE refreshments were not supposed to be caught sight of at this time. The little girl's mother had planned to lay them out on the back lawn, in the shade of the oak trees, and have them all arranged there before any of the guests became aware of them. She had failed to reckon on that sixth sense of her son, who can perceive the presence and location of food a mile off. But with the subtlety of a serpent, he said nothing of his discovery and stayed well in the background. When the refreshments had all been laid out on the lawn, on a nice white tablecloth, the devilish work began.

Of course no one witnessed it and there can be no proof. But when it came time for tea large numbers of sandwiches were missed from the plates, a collection of crusts was scattered about, and what seemed to be the print of a small hand had been placed neatly in the very middle of a green birthday cake, between the five green candles.

Apprehended nearby, the little boy next door denied all knowledge of the outrage and pointed to his unfortunate dog, Mickey, with the brief statement, "Bad dog, bad dog." And when sticky fragments of green frosting were discovered on his hand he indicated, by saying, "No, no, good boy—Mickey, Mickey," that he knew nothing of the crime; that the green frosting on his hand and on the cake was merely a coincidence.

It seemed faintly suspicious, however, that he was only able to eat seven sandwiches and a couple of pieces of cake and some ice cream at tea time, a small portion indeed compared with the Gargantuan meal of his sister who, as usual, felt that she would be rude and inhospitable if she didn't eat more than any of her guests. No one, I fancy, would ever accuse her of being rude or inhospitable.

TAILS

AFTER TEA, the party adjourned to a pin paper tails, while blindfolded, on a donkey which I had drawn on a blackboard. They pinned paper tails everywhere, on the blackboard, on oak trees on the rocks, and one little girl even pinned a tail on a little boy who happened to get into the line of fire, and pinned it in the exact geographical spot where his tails should grow. This sent the little boy screaming to his mother and rubbing the spot energetically. But the donkey, being luckier, had experienced few pin pricks.

There were prizes for the most accurate tail bearers, a parson, a set of paints, and a balloon for consolation.

Though she had received a score of presents of every description, the hostess suddenly developed a strange passion for these prizes, although her own donkey tail hadn't even reached the blackboard. As this was her party, she couldn't understand why other people should get any presents at all, complained loudly over this injustice to her mother, and retired behind an oak tree for a few moments to weep and stamp her feet and chew her nice green handkerchief.

She finally offered to trade any of her presents for the donkey prizes, which must have been flattering to the donors. And in the end she got what she wanted, as usual. She came over in the evening to inform me, with satisfaction, that the winners of the donkey prizes had forgotten to take them home, and as no one could remember in the confusion who had won them, she could go nothing but keep them herself.

POOR HASDRUBAL

MEANWHILE THE little boy next door had skilfully guided the entire party into our rock garden to reveal the wonder of poor Hasdrubal, our new turtle. Hasdrubal comes from the wilds of the interior. He is not used to parties. He doesn't understand it. He doesn't like the light of the candles and bits of cake frosting that were heaped at him. Nor would he make any statement when all the guests began to argue as to how Hasdrubal had ever got into his shell.

"And what makes his arms and hands so black?" said one little boy. "Maybe he's a darky," said another. "I know a darky boy that lives down the street and he's all black like that." "I guess if you peeled the darky boy he'd be all white all right," said his hostess.

"Let's peel the turtle and see what's under his shell," another suggested. And I think they would have peeled poor Hasdrubal if I hadn't arrived in the nick of time to save him.

Finally the party was over and all the guests had gone and the little girl next door lay on the grass and complained that she had a pain in her middle, which she couldn't explain. And then the appalling discovery was made. She had lost the little ring that her mother had given her. Search as we would the ring could not be found, and we were just giving up in despair when the little boy next door, pointing to his own middle, said, "Ring all gone, ring all gone." We looked at one another with a wild surmise, but so well filled was the little boy's middle, so round and distended and shiny, that no one knew all it contained, whether the ring was there or not. Very likely it was, for he had swallowed everything within reach.

"Maybe," said the father of the little boy next door, "it's in his breadbasket." "Oh," said the little girl next door, too weary to worry even about the loss of the ring, "you mean his cake box to-day."

Entertainments

For Legionnaires

Social functions and other entertainment brought to a close the Canadian Legion convention here Saturday afternoon, following the final business session in the morning.

Visitors were taken on a drive to Butchart's Gardens and around the waterfront in the afternoon, a large number taking advantage of the outing to see Victoria and environs.

In the evening the women's auxiliary staged a dance at the Shrine Auditorium which was also well attended.

Some of the out-of-town delegates were entertained at a smoker in the Pro Patria branch Saturday evening when J. A. McCullagh acted as master of ceremonies. The following artists took part: E. Chalmers, B. Lea, Robert Webb, William Smith, Brown, Reginald Clarke, William Morris, J. Collins, S. Howard, B. Barlow and Eric Moir.

Wonder if the goose that laid the golden eggs has gone off the gold standard yet?

TO MAKE LIFE FAIR

A bronze word, slowly feeding lies Upon the camphor leaf;
How strange that nature should devise For it, with life so brief,
A garb thus exquisite in hue And faultless in design.
Majesty sets her by two and two, And there a chalky line.
"Perhaps a mouse saw a pest. A threat to shrub and tree,
For nature abhors it, like the rest, With matchless artistry.
What is the answer? Who can say Why, of her creatures all,
None (though it live for but a day) For her to lavish beauty on
And spend her skill and care? With for the tale since time's first dawn To make life ever fair!

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES

AUGUST 7, 1908
(From The Times files)
Weather Forecast—Victoria and Vicinity: Light to moderate winds, fair and warm to-day and Saturday.

Activity in the coming football season commenced at Nanaimo last evening when the Nanaimo United club organized for the coming year and elected officers. The Nanaimo United team won the championship of British Columbia, and a determined effort will be made this year by that team to repeat the performance.

The opening of the Victoria Yacht Club's new premises will take place tomorrow afternoon, when Mrs. McBride will perform the opening ceremony and a social afternoon on the water will be spent by the members and their friends.

Out of 34,482 passengers on ninety-four vessels from foreign ports during the month of July at this port, no less than 31,045 disembarked, the proportion of those landing to the arrivals being ninety-five per cent. Although the popularity of cheap rates on the Seattle run largely accounts for the unprecedented number of visitors, the arrivals from other points were up to the usual figure.

Mrs. Langley, of Victoria, who is the only Victorian appearing in the tennis championships of the northwest at Tacoma this week has so far beaten all comers in the ladies' singles.

SUCCESS FOR WHISTLERS

Truro, N.S., Aug. 7 (Canadian Press)—The Mounties get their man—but they had to think of something new in the way of traps to capture five runaway lads from the Truro Training School. Two officers went into the woods near the school and just stood around whistling. One by one, the boys walked into their arms. Curiosity did the trick.

CHATTERTON AT CAPITOL

Has Leading Role in "Lilly Turner"; "The Life of Jimmy Dolan" Also Showing

Ruth Chatterton comes to the Capitol Theatre to-day in the most astounding characterization she has ever portrayed on the screen—in the title role of the First National picture, "Lilly Turner."

As Lilly Turner, the "Cooch" dancer and come-on girl for a carnival, she has in this picture more clandestine love affairs than most actresses portray in a lifetime. She flits from one love to another with a wild abandon inspired by cruel mistreatment at the hands of her first lover. It is not until she finally awakens to real love that ghosts of her many sweethearts rise up to haunt her.

The picture, based on the stage success by Philip Dunning and George Abbott, reveals the life behind the scenes of the players in the tawdry medicine tent shows and the glamorous carnivals.

Guy Kilbee plays the role of a detective in Douglas Fairbanks Jr.'s new Warner Bros. picture, "The Life of Jimmy Dolan," which is also at the Capitol Theatre.

"Madame Butterfly," Paramount's modern screen version of the romantic story of a Japanese Geisha Girl, is at the Columbia Theatre. Sylvia Sydney, diminutive star of "Ladies of the House," has the title role.

The film, briefly, centres around the romance between a United States naval officer, played by the popular Cary Grant and Madame Butterfly. Meeting accidentally, they fall in love and are married in Oriental fashion.

The second feature is "Say It With Music," with Jack Payne (England's Paul Whiteman) and his band.

JANET GAYNOR AT PLAYHOUSE

Janet Gaynor is one feminine screen star who does not have to rely on a fashionable wardrobe to enhance her appeal. Characterization, not clothes, have made her what she is to-day—the actress acclaimed as the most popular in pictures.

Since the days of "7th Heaven," she has appeared on the screen in simple costumes in keeping with the very human characters she has portrayed. Dress-up roles have been few and far between.

At the Playhouse Theatre, Miss Gaynor wears, gingham in the early sequences of "State Fair," and looks lovely in it. In this all star picture in which she appears with Will Rogers, Lew Ayres, Sally Eilers, Norman Foster, Frank Craven, Louise Dresser and Victor Jory, Miss Gaynor plays the role of a Midwest farm girl.

DOMINION THEATRE

Jean Harlow sings for the first time on the screen in "Hold Your Man," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature co-starring Miss Harlow and Clark Gable, and now at the Dominion Theatre.

With the inmates of a women's reform school for an audience, Jean renders the number at a piano in a manner described as "ultra-torchy." It is a new song hit written especially for the picture by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, noted "Broadway Melody" and other popular musical composers.

EMPIRE THEATRE

Lovely Anne Grey who, as the superb Raina in Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man," directed by Cecil Lewis, now at the Empire Theatre, gives the most outstanding performance of her career, confesses that when she was first persuaded to take up screen work she was not in the least interested as to whether she became a film actress or not. That apathy, however, quickly developed into enthusiasm until to-day she would not change her profession for anything.

She had just completed a literary course at the London University and was preparing to launch out on a literary career when quite by chance she accompanied a friend of hers, who was keen to go on the films, to an agent's office.

FENG NOW AGREES WITH NANKING

Associated Press
Peiping, Aug. 7.—General Feng Yu-hsiang and the national government appeared to-day to have reached a peaceful solution of the Chahar province situation.

Feng, after resisting the national government many months and threatening to renew the war against Japan for the recovery of Jehol province and Manchuria, announced his willingness to give up his title as head of the "People's Anti-Japanese Army" and place Chahar in the hands of Peiping National Government representatives.

SAYS DOMINIONS SETTLERS' FIELDS

Canadian Press
Brighton, Eng., Aug. 7.—Dominions Secretary, J. H. Thomas, told an audience here to-day the "natural and inevitable outlet for British people must be through our dominions." The Secretary, speaking at the opening of the South American display at the Empire Marketing Board's shop, appealed to his hearers to buy goods from the dominions.

"When you remember," he said, "that for the past thirty years the average number of men and women leaving Great Britain for overseas has been between 150,000 and 200,000 every year, and that for the first time in history instead of any going 60,000 returned last year, you get some idea of the important part emigration must play in the solution of our problems here."

End Piles Quick

No Salves—No Cutting.
Your itching, bleeding, protruding piles will go when you actually remove the cause—bad blood circulation in the weak, flabby parts—and not one minute before. Salves or cutting can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. HEM-ROID, prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record right in this city, that MacFarlane and Vancouver Drug Stores say one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile agony or money back. (Advt.)

NOVEL WELFARE PLAN SUCCESS

Girls of Montreal Grow Vegetable Gardens as Community Plan

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Aug. 7.—Eric Muncester in the current issue of the organ of the Canadian Council on Child and Family Welfare records how Rosemount, Ont., has been virtually transformed by an amazingly successful community welfare scheme.

With garden-rakes and hoes, spades and bright-tinted forks, scores of girls and young women of Rosemount, one of Montreal's most important industrial suburbs, have sallied forth into small gardens this year with a determination to grow more and better vegetables or know the reason why.

LENORE ULRIC TO GET DIVORCE

Canadian Press
Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 7.—Lenore Ulric, actress, is about to climax her separation agreement of last October when her husband, Walter Blum, in a Mexican divorce court. They were married in 1929.

Blackmer announced the impending divorce Sunday. He said: "I was the old struggle between a home and a career. I regret very much the divorce suit has come but I will not contest it."

SLIT SKIRTS TO BE FASHION

Paris Shows Some Slashed Evening Skirts in Elegant Gowns

(By ADELAIDE KERR)

Paris, Aug. 7.—Longer skirts for wear after 5 o'clock were decreed by larger houses today in fashion shows crystallizing trends for winter styles.

Following a mode of elegance which Paris has determined to launch, ankle-length skirts appeared in tea-time costumes, while evening gowns touched the floor, or nearly so, many having slight trains.

There were numerous slit skirts for evening, slashed one to eight times. Daytime skirt lengths were measured according to the height, varying from eight to thirteen inches from the ground.

New afternoon ensembles, fashioned of light materials, had been designed with long sleeves and long skirts, and had highlength jackets, richly furled. They were black, burgundy, dark green and navy.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

CONSTANT PEEVING RUINS APPETITES AND DISPOSITIONS. It is no uncommon sight to see the mother of several small children start off for a day of visiting or shopping with a trip armed with boxes of cookies, fruit, and all day suckers, her ammunition against misbehavior. Just as soon as the child opens his mouth, complaining or begins those irritating antics which set all mothers on edge, the food is brought forth and the child's mouth stuffed.

ALL DAY. This programme is carried out throughout a long day. Every wall is decorated with a cookie or a banana or a piece of candy. The result for the moment is quite satisfactory. Children will almost always eat between meals. But it is only at the end of the day that excitement, change of surroundings, and upset stomachs begin demanding attention. The child screams, cries, when looked at, and acts like a little demon. "Yes, of course she's tired, and everything is so different," the mother explains over and over. But chiefly it is the child's stomach that has soured her disposition. There is nothing so calculated to wreck the natural appetite and good dispositions of children as this unnatural feeding.

GOODBY, APPETITES. All through the hot summer children are constantly being tempted by something to eat. There are many between meals consumed in the hot weather than in the cold, when it would serve a more useful purpose. No child can eat between meals, especially when the mother is so near. Children are simply delighted to get into your own little hands.

TIRING WORK. "Modeling is interesting but very tiring too. You must sit or stand for hours sometimes. Until the photographs are right. You have to look pleasant whether you feel it or not; and you must not be subject to heat or cold, because you wear bathing suits in the dead of winter when you're nearly frozen, and fur coats in the middle of summer when you are nearly fainting with the heat." The girls in the clothing store which you are wearing a Victorian costume, for a fashion show or advertisement, you walk, look, and act differently from when you are wearing a swaggy riding habit. It is all very interesting, though."

LAKE HILL PICNIC Much Enjoyed. The annual picnic of Lake Hill Community Centre was held on Saturday afternoon at Elk Lake athletic grounds when a large number of members and friends gathered for a programme of races and other sports.

Supper was served at long tables spread beneath the trees, after which the president, Mr. A. McCullum, presented the prizes won by the following: Girls over six years—Jean Curran, 2; Dolores Grant; 3, Margaret Rennie; Boys and girls—1, Milton Grant; 2, Joy Deacon.

Boys' race—1, Marcus Grant; 2, L. Rennie; 3, J. Palmer. Girls' race—1, Barbara Miles; 2, K. Hall. Boys' race, sixteen—1, F. Mitchell; 2, M. Landon; 3, N. Miles. Young men's race—F. Mitchell; 2, C. Carpenter.

Ladies' walking race—1, Mrs. Grant; 2, Mrs. Deacon. Men's race—1, Mr. H. Mitchell; 2, Mr. Miles.

PURPLE STAR.—Victoria Purple Star held their regular meeting in the Orange Hall, Courtney Street, with W.M. Sister Crawford in the chair, assisted by Sister E. Trowdale in the deputy's chair, much business being done. Visitors for the evening were R.W. Sister Barrett of Vancouver, W.M. Sister Ashworth of Queen of the Island and P.M. Sister John of Harmony Lodge, Saanich, and Sister Graham.

Two minutes' silence was observed in memory of immediate Past Mistress Sister Nicholas of Britannia Lodge, and for Sister Whidden of Duncan. A drill practice is called for drill team every Tuesday at 2 o'clock. The next meeting will be held on September 6.

WAS FORTY-FOUR TIMES A BRIDE

But Only in Fashion Parades, Says Noted Mannequin Visiting Canada

Canadian Press

Toronto, Aug. 7.—Miss Kitty Allen, noted fashion model of London, England, is taking up residence in this city where she has relatives. Interviewed by The Star she said she had been forty-four times a "bride," although actually only married once in a marriage that, she says, will last all her life.

But she is a model, and forty-four times Miss Allen has donned white satin and a flowing veil, clasped her arms around a shower bouquet in the traditional manner, and either modeled in person or posed for photographs to be used in advertisements.

She posed for so many advertisements in London and there are so many pictures of her in different poses pasted around London town, on buses and boards, that she rivalled famous movie folk when it came to being recognized on the street. "Sometimes on a bus there would be an advertisement of something that I modeled for. People would look at it and look at me, judge and stare. They would stop me on the street, too, and ask if I were the girl on the advertisement!"

HAD PRIZE FIGURE. Miss Allen has been posing since sixteen years of age. She trained under Italia Conti for the stage and drama, then was chosen to model as bride-maid by the Princess Galatinze. That was the beginning. Since then she has modeled, played the lead in many moving pictures, and been on the stage. At one time she won a prize for the best figure in a bathing-suit contest in which almost 200 girls competed.

"It's always fun to put on new clothes," said Miss Allen. "But you sometimes wish you never had to see a new frock in your life again, and you are simply delighted to get into your own old things."

TIRING WORK. "Modeling is interesting but very tiring too. You must sit or stand for hours sometimes. Until the photographs are right. You have to look pleasant whether you feel it or not; and you must not be subject to heat or cold, because you wear bathing suits in the dead of winter when you're nearly frozen, and fur coats in the middle of summer when you are nearly fainting with the heat."

The girls in the clothing store which you are wearing a Victorian costume, for a fashion show or advertisement, you walk, look, and act differently from when you are wearing a swaggy riding habit. It is all very interesting, though."

LAKE HILL PICNIC Much Enjoyed. The annual picnic of Lake Hill Community Centre was held on Saturday afternoon at Elk Lake athletic grounds when a large number of members and friends gathered for a programme of races and other sports.

Supper was served at long tables spread beneath the trees, after which the president, Mr. A. McCullum, presented the prizes won by the following: Girls over six years—Jean Curran, 2; Dolores Grant; 3, Margaret Rennie; Boys and girls—1, Milton Grant; 2, Joy Deacon.

Boys' race—1, Marcus Grant; 2, L. Rennie; 3, J. Palmer. Girls' race—1, Barbara Miles; 2, K. Hall. Boys' race, sixteen—1, F. Mitchell; 2, M. Landon; 3, N. Miles. Young men's race—F. Mitchell; 2, C. Carpenter.

Ladies' walking race—1, Mrs. Grant; 2, Mrs. Deacon. Men's race—1, Mr. H. Mitchell; 2, Mr. Miles.

PURPLE STAR.—Victoria Purple Star held their regular meeting in the Orange Hall, Courtney Street, with W.M. Sister Crawford in the chair, assisted by Sister E. Trowdale in the deputy's chair, much business being done. Visitors for the evening were R.W. Sister Barrett of Vancouver, W.M. Sister Ashworth of Queen of the Island and P.M. Sister John of Harmony Lodge, Saanich, and Sister Graham.

Two minutes' silence was observed in memory of immediate Past Mistress Sister Nicholas of Britannia Lodge, and for Sister Whidden of Duncan. A drill practice is called for drill team every Tuesday at 2 o'clock. The next meeting will be held on September 6.

TRAGIC END TO AIR HONEYMOON

Bodies of Ex-Army Captain and Bride Found in Kenya Jungle

The tragic end to a honeymoon trip by air was accidentally discovered in an almost inaccessible place in the jungle at Tanganyika, Africa, when a native climbed to the top of a high tree to place a beehive in its branches. From his vantage point he observed the wreckage of the plane in the dense undergrowth and journeyed to the nearest settlement many miles away to procure help.

TRAGIC "LOG" FOUND. In a tiny wood and iron building in the little outpost town of Mbezi, Tanganyika, the dramatic story of the deaths, following an aeroplane crash, of Capt. Richard Usher, a wealthy Kenya settler formerly in the Life Guards regiment in London, and his bride of two days was told.

On the table at which the district commissioner sat were the relics of the honeymoon tragedy. Chief among these was Capt. Usher's log book, in the pages of which in the dead man's handwriting were recorded his last thoughts as he sat, hopeless and despairing, weighing the problems of life and death as he wrote his last message. Beside him was the wreckage of his aeroplane, and a few feet away the lifeless body of his bride, half hidden in the jungle undergrowth. All round was the silence of the African mountains, with not a sign of man.

In this setting Capt. Usher wrote a last letter to his mother—who lives in Wyndham-place, London, who went to Nairobi to attend the wedding—informing her of the probability that the tragedy would end in his suicide.

Afterward he wrote in the log book the following entry: "I crashed at eight hours approximately, fifteen to twenty miles from Mbezi. Got into a bad cloud and spun. I did my best to right the machine but failed."

We crashed. My darling wife is killed. I can just touch her head. May God forgive me and give us His blessing. The accident was my fault. She was an angel on earth. It was not the fault of the machine."

SHOT HIMSELF. Later the court was told the story of Capt. Usher's death. He was found sitting with a revolver in his right hand and a bullet wound in his right temple, but the absence of other injuries indicated that, while his wife was killed outright, he miraculously escaped death when the aeroplane plunged to earth in the swirling mist.

The machine fell at an almost inaccessible spot, just a mile from the Great North Road through Africa, in dense forest undergrowth.

But for the fact that a native happened to select a tree close by in which to place a beehive, the tragedy would probably have gone undiscovered even after the most careful search.

MRS. GANDHI IS OUT OF JAIL. She and Fifteen Other Women of India Congress Party Released

Canadian Press
Ahmedabad, India, Aug. 7.—Mrs. Mohandas K. Gandhi, wife of the National leader, and fifteen other women members of Gandhi's college of devoted were released temporarily today from the Sabarmati jail here, where they were imprisoned after the arrest of Gandhi, August 1, at the outset of a new independence movement.

Mrs. Gandhi and her companions were ordered to go to a specified area, but they refused and were rearrested. C. R. G. Acharya, Gandhi's chief lieutenant, and sixteen others were sentenced at Madras to six months' imprisonment following their arrest while conducting a series of meetings explaining the Congress party's independence programme.

SURPRISE FOR BOY SCOUTS. Chicago, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—Boy Scouts here had as their guest an animal that has head and shoulders like those of a rabbit, quills like a porcupine, and a rattle that sounds like a rattlesnake. It is the property of Dr. C. C. Chandler of Corpus Christi, Texas.

GROWING INTO A HABIT. Amy looked at her mother with new interest. This was exactly what had happened. All except one thing. She wasn't enjoying it, or at least she said so.

"Yes, you are, or you wouldn't do it. My dear, we don't do things we don't enjoy. We enjoy setting things. Did you ever know that? People have quick tempers, for instance, because they like to be all excited and about mean things."

"And all this 'mad' business of yours is something like that. You get a big kick out of it. So does Margaret, probably."

"But anyway, I won't have it. It has to stop. You're right over to her now and make it up."

Amy went reluctantly and the two girls made up. But already Amy was wondering who else she could be "mad" at next. It gets to be a habit. It should be stopped. This little girl's mother was wise, and she was right.

Be habitually "mad" somebody is a sort of orry of hatefulness. It should have no place in any child's life.

MONA-LISA IN LOUVRE GENUINE. Paris, Aug. 7 (Associated Press).—The Mona Lisa in the Louvre is the real Mona Lisa, museum officials emphatically declared today when asked about a London newspaper statement that the original of Da Vinci's masterpiece was in the hands of an Algerian picture dealer.

An official said photographs, minute descriptions by experts and a mass of similar evidence collected prior to the theft of the Mona Lisa in August, 1911, enabled experts definitely to prove the identity of the canvas recovered in Florence in December, 1913.

Mrs. Mary Brown Dies at Nanaimo

Nanaimo, Aug. 7.—The death occurred at the family residence, Macleary Street, of Mrs. Mary Ann Brown, seventy-two, wife of James William Brown. She was a native of Wakefield, Yorkshire, England, came to Canada forty-five years ago and had resided in Nanaimo for thirty years. She is survived by her husband, two sons, Percy, Australia, and George Archie, Piers Island; two daughters, Mrs. Alf Blank and Mrs. Fred Hughes, Vancouver; two brothers and one sister residing in Seattle. The funeral arrangements are in the hands of D. J. Jenkins Limited.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

If you like to make the most of salads when vegetables are plentiful and cheap, the custom of serving them "family style" has much in its favor. Such salad arrangements enable each member of the group to be served to make up his own combination to please his taste, and a wide variety of vegetables can be introduced into meals.

In summer salads use a preponderance of crisp salad greens, so the other foods should be chosen with regard to the needs of the menu and the taste of the family. The addition of a small green to a combination of the ordinary lettuce and dress will do much to add interest to the old stand-by SALAD IN GAY POTTERY.

In serving these help-yourself salads, make them as inviting and colorful as possible. Use your silver, glass, pottery, china or glass serving dishes no matter in what shape they may be. Halfloaf bowls, flat platters, plates and chop plates are all usable and attractive.

Arrange the vegetables in neat rows or in separate piles, using the greens to make a border. For example, use a wide deep bowl with finely shredded lettuce. Between each spoke put piles of stewed okra and put a border of sliced cucumbers around the whole. The dressing may be blended with the vegetables or served separately. Or you could use alternating piles of green beans and okra and then anyone who preferred beans to okra could please his taste.

Another excellent combination that permits each person to make his own salad is arranged as follows: Line a wide deep bowl with finely shredded lettuce and on this place mounds of lima beans, carrot cubes, peas and diced new turnips. Or you may make up a platter of shredded cabbage, stewed okra, cucumber fingers and tomato halves.

SALAD IN ROTATION. A mound of bean sprouts surrounded by a border of head lettuce leaves, the leaves holding bread cubes and cubes of avocado in alternating rotation, offers an out-of-the-ordinary and extremely palatable combination.

For a macaroni main dish salad, combine well cooked macaroni, with mayonnaise and place it in the centre of a deep platter. Sprinkle with grated hard cheese and surround with a border of quartered tomatoes, shredded green pepper and diced celery. Stuffed green and ripe olives may be added if wanted.

To-morrow's Menu. Breakfast—Orange juice, cereal, creamed dried beef, popovers, milk, coffee.

Lunch—Main dish macaroni salad, Boston brown bread and butter sandwiches, honeyball melon filled with mint sherbet, macaroni pie.

Dinner—Liver baked in sour cream, lyonnaise potatoes, salad of shredded cabbage, okra, cucumber and tomato, deep dish cherry pie, milk, coffee.

Wife Suspicious Of Lipstick Smear. Seattle, Aug. 7.—Mrs. June Gilmore filed suit to divorce her husband, David, protesting he came home with perfume on his coat and lipstick on his face. Even his work as a cosmetics salesman failed to protect him from her suspicions, she said.

INDIAN GIRL SEEKS CROWN. This full-blooded Ojase Indian beauty, Miss Joanne Alcorn, may be the first real "Miss America" for she has been chosen "Miss Oklahoma" and will compete in the United States national contest at Atlantic City next month.

FIRST SCHOOL MAY BE MARKED

B.C. Historical Society Asks Ottawa to Make It a National Monument

Speakers Recall Early Hudson's Bay Farming and Other Operations

Craigflower School on the Island Highway, where it crosses the Gorge, will be closed and marked as a national monument of Canada, if the Dominion Historical Sites and Monuments Board at Ottawa accepts the proposal made at the field meeting of speakers at the B.C. Historical Society Saturday afternoon at the old schoolhouse, which was British Columbia's first school.

John Hoole, provincial archivist, moved and Alderman R. T. Williams seconded the resolution which will go to Ottawa. Seated under the historical maple of the grounds with C. H. French, president of the society, were C. C. Pemberton, Donald Fraser, James Beatty of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Robert H. Hiscocks of the Agricultural Company, formerly with the Native Daughters, and Chairman F. V. Hobbs of the Saanich School Board.

EARLY FARMING DAYS. Mr. French delivered an address on the Hudson's Bay Company's early farming operations in the district where large tracts of land have been held by the company down to present years. He told how the Puget Sound Agricultural Company, which was the Hudson's Bay Company for the purpose of supplying the farm supplies needed by the parent company, after arrival on Vancouver Island, had been allotted ten square miles, which was divided into four farms, as follows: Viewfield, 505 acres; Constance Cove, 600 acres; Craigflower, 750 acres, and Colwood, 620 acres. In 1852, Mr. Langford, who built and operated the Colwood Farm, arrived from England with thirty servants. In 1853, Mr. McKenney, who had been in the district for some time earlier. None of the farms produced a profit. The Hudson's Bay Company also built a sawmill at Millstream, in 1848, and brought out machinery for a grist mill to be built at the same place. But there was no demand for the mill, and when it was decided that steam must be used, Craigflower was chosen for the site of the mill. There were also erected a bakehouse and planing mill. Craigflower bridge was started in 1853, and completed in 1855.

The bakery was discontinued after 1876 after having supplied biscuits and bread to the British Navy at Esquimalt.

Mr. French also told of Sir James Douglas's faith in the power possibilities of the Gorge.

Mr. Beatty spoke of the work accomplished by the historic features committee of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce formed in 1921 and the attention accorded Craigflower School as the first place considered.

School Trustee Hobbs told of how the monument had been transferred to the Saanich and Saanich to the Native Sons and Daughters, the old Craigflower School, which had subsequently been improved for preservation.

Mrs. Beckwith and Mr. Hiscocks both spoke of the pleasure their organizations had experienced in their part of preserving the school.

TRACES TO BEGINNINGS. Mr. Pemberton presented a paper which dealt with incidents of the world-famous search for the Northwest Passage, the discovery in 1781 by Capt. Charles William Barkley of "the long lost Strait of Juan de Fuca," and the effect of the maritime fur trade built up by the Hudson's Bay Company and other traders. He pointed out that direct descendants of Captain and Mrs. Barkley (the latter as a bride having accompanied her husband on his historic voyage to this coast) still lived at Westholme, Vancouver, and were very far distant from this historic farm and school building.

Mr. Pemberton went on to recount how the Hudson's Bay Company in 1848 founded Fort Victoria as new headquarters in a locality that would be more certain of remaining British territory than their previous headquarters at Fort Vancouver in the State of Washington. The company formed a corporation known as the Puget Sound Agricultural Company to operate farms of which Craigflower Farm at Victoria was one. This was under the management of Kenneth Mackenzie, native of Ross-shire, Scotland, from 1851 to 1855. Mackenzie arrived from England in January, 1853, with his family, also bringing with him for colonization purposes, twenty-five families, consisting of tradespeople of all classes, and machinery and tools for their use. In order that they could have free waterway to Victoria, the farm site was selected on the banks of Victoria Arm, the establishment being named Craigflower after the English estate of Governor Colville of the Hudson's Bay Company.

"Under Mackenzie's management Craigflower soon became important as the source of supplies. In those days the men engaged on the farm, besides tilling the fields were drilled to repel any attack the Indians might make," Mr. Pemberton said.

"Mackenzie was an outstanding man, the family were among the most prominent of the pioneers, and the Mackenzie name consequently was among those perpetuated in Coast place names."

Mr. Pemberton described the old Craigflower farm house, still standing, as a lasting memorial not only of the International - Oregon Boundary dispute, and the founding of Fort Victoria, but also of the days of the historic overland fur trade in which the Hudson's Bay Company managed, by a policy of honesty and fair dealing, to win the co-operation of the wild and barbarous native tribes of North America.

In his paper, Mr. Pemberton went on to "The Colony of Vancouver Island," the first British colony in the North Pacific, was created in 1849, and was proclaimed by Governor Blanshard at Fort Victoria on March 11, 1850. Rev. Edward Cridge, brought here from England as chaplain in connection with the company's policy of providing for public worship and public education in the communities often held services in the old Craigflower School.

The two most populous sections of the island at that time were in the immediate vicinity of the Port and the vicinity of Craigflower, so the Colonial Council erected a school in each of these centres. Rev. Edward Cridge being appointed the first Superintendent of Education for the colony. The Craigflower School, which was the Victoria School, and thanks to the work of the Historic Features Committee appointed by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce some years ago, has been the repair, conservation and conversion into a museum are the results of interest on the part of Post No. 1, Native Sons of B.C., and Post No. 3, Native Daughters of B.C. This interest was initiated by the late Bro. W. A. Lorrimer, and the undertaking was continued with the aid of the Provincial Government, the Provincial Archives, the Saanich Municipal Council, F. V. Hobbs of the Saanich School Board, Mr. Watson (grandson of Kenneth Mackenzie), and other relatives of the pioneers of the Craigflower district.

After the addresses, the members participated in a basket picnic, using logs taken from the old building on Craigflower farm, just across the Gorge water.

DIES IN VANCOUVER. Vancouver, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—A resident of Vancouver for twenty-two years, Mrs. Enoch Evans, wife of a city architect, died today at the family residence, 1321 East Seventh.

Born in Staffordshire in 1859, she followed her husband to Vancouver in 1911 and has since resided continuously in Grandview district. Mrs. Evans was connected with Trinity United Church and was an active worker in its various organizations.

Besides her husband she is survived by three sons, George, Frank and William, all residing in Vancouver; two daughters, Mrs. Ada Gide of this city, and Mrs. Gertrude Hillocock of Leland, Mich.

Working Wives

By ANNE GARDNER

Finally Nan flared up and told Jocko that she was through acting as a housekeeper for him and his secretary. Jocko was genuinely surprised and sorry. They had put too much of a burden on him, he thought. Jocko had a highly exaggerated idea of the gravity of household tasks and he strove to remedy it by doing his night work at the office.

This wasn't what Nan had wanted—what she did want was a man who would do the housework for her. But she accepted it. Only it meant long evenings of loneliness for her, with Jocko and Iva working downtown. Nan might have gone with Jocko when he returned to the office after dinner. Jocko urged her a number of times. But she no longer wished to. Perhaps it was because they no longer included her in their councils, except for politeness.

Iva and Jocko had gone so deeply into the magazine, they had their plans so well formed together, that an outsider had little to contribute. And Nan was an outsider. Her suggestions no longer quite hit the mark. She was out of touch with things.

An outsider. "Just Home Bodies." The first sketch should be of Nan Weisman herself.

What Nan needed now, above all things was an interest in life. This was the psychological time for her to have a baby.

Once for a brief time she imagined, like poor Mrs. Soames, that this was to be, and she thought made her happy again, filled her days with ecstatic planning. But again life seemed flatter than ever before.

She even considered adopting a baby for a time. But Mrs. Warren assured her earnestly that young as she was, this would be a great mistake. "You'd probably have a child of your own right away after that, and I've seen that prove a tragedy too many times," she said. Nan felt that Mrs. Warren was right. She must look elsewhere for her interest.

That was easy enough. She would get at the writing, which was the ultimate goal for every newspaper man or woman as soon as he or she can have the leisure.

She rented a typewriter, fitted up a pleasant corner as a work room, and made a brave start. Nan could write there was no doubt about that. She saw her name in all the leading magazines, her first novel among the best sellers.

But her interest flagged before she had finished her first sketch. She made excuses each day for not going to the typewriter. Finally, one day, she stayed on it from one week to the next, except when Jocko used it.

The truth was that Nan needed the spur of action to make her produce. At the office she had had this. A good story, turned out quickly, brought an admiring chorus from her editors and fellow reporters.

But to work on her alone day after day, with no results to show—that was not Nan's forte. But always she was going to get busy. To-morrow. Well, day after to-morrow.

The household tasks were now an old story, except the part that dealt with economizing. Jocko's salary enabled them to live comfortably with few flourishes. Nan did not feel this especially until she began to wish to replace clothes. Then she discovered that she never could afford to buy the thing she wanted.

There was nothing much, indeed, to give a flip to life. Nothing much to fill Nan's mind. And Nan's was a mind that must be busy.

quite realizing it. Even granting burdens, wasn't she entitled to something? Before, when he had loved her—she said this aloud with morbid relish—he had never been too busy for her. Now she might slip out of his life and never be missed.

But Iva Clarkson would be missed. He said many times that he couldn't get along without Nan. He couldn't. Then one night the telephone rang, and Nan answered it. Her voice at first lifeless, then incredulous, then joyous.

"Why Harry, when did you get back? Yesterday?"

"How did you ever find us?"

"Ah, always the good newspaper man! Carry you come out? Jocko and I are here all alone, praying for something nice to happen!"

"She turned excitedly to Jocko. 'Harry Jordan. He's back in New York to stay for awhile.'"

Jocko had a swift foreboding of disaster. Was he to lose all the happiness that he had been so long in winning? Nan cleared the table quickly, setting the dishes neatly in the kitchen, making everything tidy. Then she ran to accomplish a hurried toilet. There Jocko, which things she should do, manicure her nails, bathe, spend a long time on her hair and makeup. Instead there was time only to dash water over her face and slip into a dress, change her stockings and shoes, dab at her cheeks and hair.

As she surveyed herself, far from satisfied with the effect, she suddenly realized how much she had changed. Now her first instinct was to make her husband first. A year, six months ago, she wouldn't have thought of the house but would have concentrated on her own appearance. Little Harry Gordon would care, she reflected ruefully, whether the kitchen was clean or not. But he would most certainly take in every detail of Nan from head to feet.

Still, the face that looked out at her from the mirror was lovelier than ever before. The added plumpness was becoming—and any more would detract, she determined—and there was another quality, born of her love for Jocko, which made her face more beautiful. It was a softness, a glow, a radiance that had been lacking before. She wondered whether Harry would think she had improved, or retrograded.

When Harry arrived, it was to a meeting of old friends. Nan had forgotten, in her happiness with Jocko, the heartaches Harry had caused her. Jocko greeted him heartily. Nan studied and the two men with interest.

Harry had changed little, except for lines of strain about his eyes and mouth. His manner might have been a little more suave and polished, but these were qualities he had never lacked. There was perhaps more of an air of distinction about him.

He had changed, but he had gained in poise and assurance. Nan even thought he looked bigger when he and Harry shook hands. In some instances, Harry had been out of his clothes in the morning. He had a way of taking the clothes out of his closet in his own way.

Horoscope
TUESDAY, AUGUST 8

This is rather an uncertain day with certain adverse aspects discernible, according to astrology. It is a time for care in all matters involving risk.

In the early morning hours merchants and manufacturers may plan future enterprise with a fair hope of success. The stars indicate the expansion of the day. Although this is promising for those who are in the line of commerce, the day is not without its dangers. Legal papers are under rather an unkindly way.

Uncle Wiggily and the Blue Jay

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

Once upon a time, when Uncle Wiggily was sitting out in his garden under the shady trees, keeping cool, the rabbit gentleman heard a loud voice shouting:

"Hay! Hay! Hay!"

At last it sounded like that. Though, as the voice kept on calling it also sounded like:

"This is rather strange," said Uncle Wiggily to himself as he twinkled his pink nose. "First I thought that might be the milkman's horse, calling for hay to eat. Next it sounds like somebody calling a little boy named Ray. I wonder what it is?"

Just then the voice shouted what sounded like:

"Fish hook! Fish hook! Fish hook!"

"Ah," laughed Uncle Wiggily. "The boy who it is, now. It is the Blue Jay bird. He has different ways of calling. Well, as long as he isn't calling, I'll keep on reading my paper."

For while he was sitting under the cool trees, Mr. Longears was reading the paper. But as soon as he began to read the Blue Jay called more loudly than before:

"Oh," answered the Blue Jay. "My goodness me, taken alive!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman. "Can't you fly away, Blue Jay, and do your thing somewhere else? I want to be quiet. Go away, please!"

"I can't go away," said the Blue Jay. "Why not?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "Because I am caught fast in this tree over your head," was the answer. "I can't fly. I'm caught!"

"Caught? That's too bad," said Mr. Longears. "How did it happen?"

"The forthnightly card party of the Royal Oak Women's Institute was held Thursday evening with five tables in play. ## PASTOR DROWNED IN ARKANSAS

Fort Smith, Ark., Aug. 7.—A minister preparing for a baptizing ceremony was drowned in the Arkansas River yesterday. Wading out to receive nine persons waiting to be baptized, Rev. William Wilson, thirty-six-year-old Holiness minister of Van Buren, was caught in a whirlpool.

TWO KILLED BY TRAIN

Toronto, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—A youth and girl were instantly killed when their car was struck by a fast Canadian National Railway train here Saturday night at the Victoria Park crossing. The two, Roy E. Judges, nineteen, and Evelyn Chambers, nineteen, both of East York, were hurled 200 feet and the coupe was completely wrecked by the impact.

FIVE DROWNED

Moran, Wyo., Aug. 7 (Associated Press).—Five persons drowned in Jackson Lake yesterday when their fishing boat capsized after springing a leak fifty feet from the west shore of the lake.

Chicago Wheat Down
Fraction Despite a
"Bull" Visible Report

Associated Press
Chicago, Aug. 7.—Despite announcement of 3,027,000 bushels increase of the United States wheat visible supply, wheat prices displayed steadyness in the late dealings to-day, at a little under Saturday's finish.
There was no pronounced buying or selling, and speculative interest was restricted owing more or less to a holiday at Winnipeg and wheat closed easy, ¼ to ½ under Saturday's finish of ½ to 1 cent off, oats ¼ to ½ down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 15 cents.
Wheat futures closed September 98 to 98½; December 1.01 to 1.01½; May 1.05 to 1.05½; corn, September 94½ to 94½; December 98½ to 98½; May 94½ to 94½.

USE OF COTTON
SHOWS INCREASE

World Consumption Last Year
Best Since Season of 1929-1930

Associated Press
New York, Aug. 7.—World consumption of cotton, all growths, for the season just ended, was the largest since the 1929-30 season, the New York Cotton Exchange reported to-day.
During the twelve months ending July 31 world spinners used approximately 24,725,000 bales, compared with 23,007,000 in the previous season.
The world's carry-over of all kinds of cotton on July 31 was approximately 15,530,000 bales on the basis of preliminary returns against 17,412,000 a year ago.

Chicago Board of Trade to Hold Hearing Into Rapid
Fluctuation of Wheat Prices

Secretary of Agriculture
Henry Wallace Requests Details of Speculative Accounts

Associated Press
Chicago, Aug. 7.—An investigation into wheat price fluctuations covering the period from June 15 to July 31 when prices advanced 48 cents in five days only to fall 30 cents in two days, was ordered to-day by Board of Trade officials at the request of the United States Department of Agriculture.
All members of the exchange clearing house were directed in an order from the Board's assistant secretary, William B. Bowditch, to furnish the local office of the grain futures administration, government agency supervising the grain exchanges, details of every speculation account revealing a trading position of more than 300,000 bushels.
Peter B. Carey, president of the Board of Trade, in a statement said the request was made for the information by the Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace.

LOWER DRIFT
AT MONTREAL

Montreal, Aug. 7 (Canadian Press).—In lackadaisical fashion, prices on Montreal Stock Exchange drifted lower during to-day's session. Sales volume was very light.

Brazilian Traction and Canadian Pacific Railway advanced ¼, while International Nickel was down 15 cents. Most real power held unchanged. Canadian Industrial Alcohol issues were off fractions.

Canadian Cottons preferred rose 25 cents to a new high at 75, while Banque Canadienne Nationale was up seven points at 155. Penman's lost five points and Bank of Montreal three.

Vancouver, Aug. 7.—Gross earnings for the month of July from operations at the Pioneer Gold Mines Ltd., totaled $204,300. Expenses were $61,200, leaving net earnings of $143,100 without allowing for one depletion or taxes.
Owing to extension of the hydro power plant expenditures were slightly higher in July.

BROKERS OPEN
BRANCH HERE

Douglas Gordon to Manage
Victoria Offices of Bird and Talling

Bird and Talling Limited announce the opening of a branch office at 508 Belmont House for the convenience of their Victoria clients. This firm deals principally in government, municipal and corporation bonds and investment securities generally. Its head office is located in Vancouver at 829 West Pender Street. He personnel of the firm at Vancouver includes: H. J. Bird, president; J. H. Talling, vice-president; and A. W. Black and J. Edward Bird, directors.
The Victoria office will be under the management of Douglas Gordon who is a nephew of Mrs. David Spencer Jr. of this city and is well known here. E. S. Nicol, who will be in charge of the trading department, received his training in the bond business in Montreal and is also well known in Victoria.
The principals of the firm are well known in the bond business in the province, both Mr. Bird and Mr. Talling having been connected with established financial firms in Vancouver, before going into business for themselves in 1931. The firm specializes in investment counsel and their policy is to act as brokers only for their clients' account. A very complete statistical department will be installed in the Victoria office covering latest information on stocks and bonds. The firm sponsors a weekly radio broadcast over station CKWX each Monday at 7 a.m. which comprises a review of the security markets.
The Victoria office will act as agents for the Trans-Canada Investment Corporation, sponsors of Trans-Canada shares series "A." An investment trust comprised of fifteen Canadian dividend paying common stocks.

Bralorne and C. & E.
Corporation Lead On Vancouver Exchange

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Aug. 7.—Bralorne and C. & E. Corporation, trading leaders of the mining and oil sections of the Vancouver Stock Exchange during to-day's forenoon session, were the bright spots of their respective divisions. Trading was extremely dull, but price levels were generally well maintained, although Reno and Home Oil sagged below recent levels.
Pioneer Gold set a price level at $12.50 in one small trade, not a board lot, and Cariboo Gold held unchanged from last week at $2.93 and $2.95. Reno was offered at $1.75 at the end of the forenoon session, after sinking back to that figure in sales. Bridge River Ex-

PARIS MARKET

Paris, Aug. 7.—There was little activity on the Bourse to-day, owing to the holiday in London. Except for coal issues, which were strong and rubber shares which were weak, the few transactions were made at unchanged prices. The market closed irregular.

BIG CONFERENCE

Canadian Press
Montreal, Aug. 7.—Far from being a failure, the World Economic Conference had accomplished as much as any thinking person expected of it, said Alexander Zelinsky of 783 Mar Street, who passed away Saturday, will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the E. J. Curry and a Funeral Home.

Rev. Dr. Clem Davies will officiate and interment will be in the Royal Oak Burial Park. It is requested that flowers be sent.
